When we say:

You can learn Esperanto four times faster than other languages

it does not necessarily apply to all intelligent beings across all spacetime and all possible multiverses:

You

Means a typical American who speaks only English.

Does not apply to children, who can pick up multiple languages simultaneously; to people who already speak six other languages; or to geniuses who can learn Cantonese in a week.

Esperanto

Meaning “read, write, understand, speak” to an equivalent level in another language, with a similar amount of study. So, for example, one month of studying Esperanto can get you as far as four months of studying French.

four times faster

Around four times faster, not 4.0000 times faster. Maybe three times, maybe six times. It depends.

than other languages.

We mean, “Faster than you can learn French, Russian, or non-Indo-European languages.”
Does not mean, “Faster than you can learn British, Canadian, or Australian.”
