You say you've always wanted to learn a second language? Well enough to actually speak it? But you don't have five years of spare time?

How about a language that won't take five years?

How about a language that you can learn four times faster? (Because the grammar is very regular—and very simple.) One that two million people speak, in almost every country? (Because it's politically neutral—it doesn't belong to any single nation or group.) One that's easy to pronounce and read? (Because it's completely phonetic.) One that opens the world to you? One that's actually fun to learn?

Ready for a surprise? It's Esperanto—the international language that works.
