Did you know that you can learn Esperanto at least four times faster than other languages?

Because the grammar is highly regular — and very simple. No lists of exceptions, no irregular verbs. And it's completely phonetic. The result? You can become fluent — actually able to speak and read Esperanto — in a quarter of the time you'd need for some other language.

Maybe that's why two million people speak Esperanto all over the world. Too bad we couldn't fit that number into the heading.

Esperanto — the international language that works.
